,Today, in honor of the week of Thanksgiving, Google has unveiled a pretty cool Doodle that features a customizable Turkey. A rather goofy looking Turkey, mind you.Users can change the shape and colors of the feathers, the type of head covering, and the shoes of the turkey by clicking on the specific parts. The four feathers are available in many colors and designs, and you can make it wear a toboggan, a wizard hat, and eye patch, and football helmet and more. On the footwear side of things, you options include sneakers, high heels, roller skates and many more.If you click on the turkey ' s wing, is will randomize everything.UPDATE: Through playing with the Doodle a little more and with a little help from commenters, we ' ve found that there are plenty of little Easter eggs hidden in the Doodle. If you align the feathers, hats, and footwear in the right ways, you unlock some sweet hidden animations. The more we learn about this Doodle, the more it ' s looking like a productivity killer.Once you ' ve finished your unique creation, you can grab a shortened link to share with friends which will link to your specific turkey design – similar to how you could share your unique songs with the Les Paul playable guitar Google Doodle.And for the first time that I can recall, there is an actual Google+ share button built into the Doodle. Here ' s the box that pops up if you want to share your turkey with your Google+ acquaintances:See what crazy turkey design combinations you can create, and Happy Thanksgiving!.,Right now, as you ' re reading this, all kinds of electronic processes are running in your computer to make sure the information you desire is showing up on your monitor. What you might not know is that electricity isn ' t the most efficient means of relaying this information, but it ' s all we have. Until now. You can, who has made huge strides towards the development of photonic chips.Many modern day communication systems use fiber optics to transfer information from one location to another. Tiny beams of light transmit much of the information we access on a daily basis. The big hurdle is when the information gets to a location or computer, the information needs to be converted to electronic form so our systems can process the information, and then processed as light again so we can read it.Caroline Ross, the Toyota Professor of Materials Science and Engineering at MIT, has developed a new component, she calls a " diode for light " .So why haven ' t we been using light in our microchips until now?The problem is harnessing light in such a way that the lasers powering them wouldn ' t reduce in efficiency when transferring the information. However, they discovered a material,Garnet, which they could add to microchips, allowing the light to transfer properly.One practical advancement from this discovery is these photonic chips can be processed using the standards we have now. Ross explains, " It simplifies making an all-optical chip. The design of the circuit can be produced just like an integrated-circuit person can design a whole microprocessor. Now, you can do an integrated optical circuit. ” This means the advancement discovered by MIT could have a much quicker shift to the commercial market. The improvements the technology could provide our computational devices is astronomical. First and foremost, light travels much faster than electrons. Also, the wires which are required to transmit electronic signals can only carry a single data stream while light can carry various streams of data through a single fiber or circuit. The realistic advancements generated from these photonic chips will take us into the next phase of processing power. While the creative dreamer in me is simply asking, “ Does this advancement get us one or even two steps closer to having actual lightsabers? “ „Spy sunglasses are actually a brand name of designer sunglasses. Most people though refer to those mirrored sunglasses as spy sunglasses because they can't see your eyes when they look at you. Therefore they have no idea whether you are watching what they are doing when you are wearing this type of sunglasses. They let you spy on others and watch the men and women without them knowing. Spy sunglasses carry the Jeremy McGrath signature. These Spy optic sunglasses are more about fit and comfort than fashion, although they are very stylish. They offer 100% UV protection, even with the discount Spy sunglasses that you get from online sites. These designer sun glasses have a multi-layer coating on the lenses to manipulate the light spectrum. This means when you are wearing these sunglasses you have the maximum visual performance and protection. Some of the different designs of Spy sunglasses that you can get include: • Abbey • Micro Scoop • Meteor • Griffin • Clint and many more. Shopping online provides you with many more opportunities to get the discount Spy sunglasses you want because the online retailers have a much larger selection to choose from. Most regular stores will only stock one or two of the Spy optic sunglasses because of cost and space. Spy sunglasses are the favorites among those that like extreme sports. These sunglasses are designed in California, but handcrafted in Italy. If you order from another state you don't have to pay any tax. This, in itself provides you with discount Spy sunglasses, but there are many retailers that sell very cheaply because they don't have to carry an extensive inventory and have low overhead costs. Each pair of Spy optic sunglasses is optically correct. Most of the Spy sunglasses are actually handpainted by Italian artisans and go through extensive testing before they go to market. The unique features of these Spy sun glasses, even when you buy at a discount, include such things as ARC prismatic lenses, polarized lenses and a scoop design put then far ahead of other sun glasses designers. In order to get your discount Spy sunglasses, you need to make sure you shop at an authorized dealer. There are many replicas available, but they are not the real thing. There are silk scarves available in different sizes, shapes and they can also be dyed in a lot of colors and prints. A beautiful silk scarf can give you a dashing, elegant unique style as well as change your entire look.It was decided by King Louis in 1466 to develop a national silk industry in Lyon. Starting in the 16th century Lyon became the capital of the European silk commerce, notably producing many reputable fashions. Lyon is known to be the silk capital of the world and a fashion center. The history of scarves is a long one, reaching as far back in history as Ancient Rome at least. The cravat, or a man's scarf, became an integral part of man's fashion in the 19th century. Tied to a belt or draped around the neck, the ancient Romans developed the scarf into a versatile piece of man's fashion accessory. Of course this style was quickly adopted by women also, and the scarf has since become synonymous with woman's fashion. However, the high cost of silk throughout history has meant that silk scarf was often considered a luxury item in Europe and North America. You don't need to spend hundreds of dollars at Hermes to own a quality silk scarf. Silk scarves have only become easy to find in the last twenty years. Knitting and weaving techniques are developing all the time to cope with the increasing demands of the world's fashion designers.The silk used to make scarves is an environmentally friendly material. The material that silk scarf is made of will give you a one-of-a-kind delight. There were various purposes for which silk scarf has been used throughout history. An elegant silk scarf tied around the neck is a timeless piece of elegance; however it is a little known fact that the early pilots used silk scarves not as an accessory, but rather as a necessity as it helped them keep the oily smoke from the engine out of their mouth. While the head scarf can be used to make a fashion statement, among educated or religious women it is often worn as a religious symbol. You can tie sleek silk scarves in many different ways, perhaps as a sash, and they have many uses: tying, scarves, hair scarves, beach scarves, coats, turbans, and neck scarves. Trendy setters were fashion-savvy enough to realize that this simple accessory can uplift any outfit. The silk scarves are a great fashion accessory and is suitable with jeans,designer dress or even with a wedding dress. Both fashion and outerwear scarves make great winter accessories and they also make terrific gifts. An eye catching accessory is a simple silk scarf worn around the neck. Many scarves have beautiful designs in coordinating colors.Some of the most beautiful and elegant scarves are silk scarves. These scarves have been thrilling the fashion world for many years. Jackie Kennedy Onassis, Audrey Hepburn, Grace Kelly and nowadays Sarah Jessica Parker, Madonna, Sharon Stone, all of them incorporated silk scarf into their attire and made fashion history. Women can now afford silk, which will add art to any outfit.
